“ Matt, I miss you. I wish I was able to say goodbye to you as I'm sure so many of us do. You and Bryan were the light of my life during the years that seem like eons ago. I couldn't wait for you to pick me up from school in your big red truck, or just hanging out in your garage playing cards. Bryan walked into my work yesterday and I couldn't help but almost start to cry. He immediately makes me think of you and your smile. I know you watch over us from the most beautiful place ever but it doesn't make it any easier. Love You <3

“ Happy Valentine's Day Matthew! I know how much you loved today. You always wanted to get your girlfriends something special to celebrate the day. I have thought about you many times during the past several weeks, wondering why you felt you had to end your life when you had som much going for you. I feel like I am waiting for you to return, but knowing that you are gone for good. I love you Matt and miss you terribly every day. I should have done something for you but I didn't and now you are gone. I still don't understand what happened that night and probably never will. We sold your furniture today and it seems that slowly we are erasing you from our lives, but you will never be gone from our hearts or memories! Never! Our house seems so large since you have left that it echos, the basement is just an empty shell without you down there. Your Dad and I are still trying to go on with our lives but it is so difficult as you were a large part of our everyday lives doing things with you every day. You certainly kept us busy! Now there is nothing but time on our hands that has to somehow be filled. Just remember that we still love you and miss you every day! See you at some point in time. Love you.

“ What happened to you is consuming me. I still love you like I always have. I think of you so often it seems I am looking at your picture all day. That smile still drives me nuts YOU HANDSOME THING!!! I'm sure your smiling in peace after hearing all the beautiful things Brian said about you and the sweet preacher woman. The celebration of your life will always be remembered. It was like the woman knew you so well. Everyone cried in your absence, but smiled and laughed when past memories took their toll. I cherish the days we were close and shared everything inside of us, being young it was easy to bear our souls because of our similarities. Brian is and always was part of you, you two were inseperable just like he said and I am thankful I was lucky enough to see this truth. I am just rambling maybe but god I wish I could just say all this to you Matthew!! Well I will be here often to visit your page and remember great moments together.

“ Matt, You are so loved. You and Sheena have each other in heaven. When we heard Sheena called me crying, I went to her apartment and brought her home, we looked at photos of you and those beautiful eyes of yours. I remembered you hanging out at the house with Sheena and Mike. Remember the time I had a birthday party for Sheena and she could have 8 girl friends sleep over and I searched the whole house thinking you were still in it. you all laughed at me cause I would I know Matt is here somewhere. You are loved and missed greatly. Look over our baby girl for us. RIP

“ Well Matt, your memorial service was today and there were over 150 people there to say goodbye to you. You were so well liked by many, it is a shame that you never were able to talk to anyone about your thoughts and feelings. Maybe if you had, we wouldn't be going thru all this pain and agony of losing you and missing you everyday. Sheena sent a floral arrangement; it is comforting to know that she was thinking about you even though she was having her own problems. Madison sent you a heart shaped arrangement, saying she loved you. We will make sure she knows that her Daddy loved her very much and will not let her forget you. You were a beautiful young man full of promise which you could not see due to the problems in your life. We love you very much and think of you daily. We miss you so much. I wish there had been a different ending to your story, but sadly this is the ending that will stay with us until we meet again. Say hello to Sheena for us, the two of you keep each other safe & happy while you wait for us to join you. Lots of love, Mom & Dad
